

THE DOUBLE FEATURE

Knock Knock & Wombo · Two one-act musicals · One night · Sydney, Australia

The evening	Knock Knock (horror) opens. Interval. Wombo (EDM comedy) closes. About 2 hours 15 minutes all up, including a 20 minute interval.
Booking	Book the pair as one night, or either show on its own. Each runs under an hour with no interval of its own.
Suits	Fringe and festival slots, pub theatres, studio and black box spaces, touring.
Advisory	Recommended 15+. Horror themes, intense sound, strong language and adult humour.

Knock Knock

A one-act horror musical. Book & lyrics by bGame.

Knock knock... what's there?

When you hear the knock, it's already too late. Eleanor and Freya are going to find the only person who ever got away. It knows they're coming. How will they survive?

Running time	1 act, 55 minutes. No interval.
Cast	2 leads: Eleanor and Freya, both adult women. Plus a flexible background ensemble that scales to your company. Something else is in the room.
Set	Projected scenery. One stage, every location, no physical set changes. No way out.
Tech	Projector and screen or cyc, full-range PA, lighting that can go to total blackout. Detailed sound and lighting notes supplied with the script.
Status	In development. Scene-by-scene outline locked, script in draft.

Wombo

A one-act EDM superhero comedy musical. Book, music & lyrics by bGame.

A filthy, furious, foul-mouthed love letter to the Australian outback.

Charlie Phoenix wanders into Cock Wash Creek, a mining town where Umbra Minerals sells poison as progress. Then a radioactive wombat bites his leg, and beige little Charlie wakes up with claws, a beard, crunchy abs and a new name: Wombo. Mentored by the deadpan, chain-vaping Belladonna, Wombo has to decide what kind of hero he is before someone burns the whole town down. He'd really just prefer a nap.

Running time	1 act, 45 to 60 minutes. No interval.
Cast	5 principals plus a flexible townsfolk ensemble. Charlie "Wombo" Phoenix (20s), Belladonna (20s), Declan Voss (40s to 60s), The Wombat, Fred the Dingo.
Set	Projected backdrops: a fibro house and a town square. Minimal physical build, big laughs.
Music	Electronic score on backing tracks. No band to hire.
Songs	6 originals: Welcome to Cock Wash Creek · Another Day, Another Nobody · What the Hell Is Happening to Me? · Built Like a Brick $#!thouse · Green Is the New Black · No Tomorrow
Listen	wombomusical.com

Why produce it

- Two shows, one ticket. A full evening together, or book one on its own.
- Small cast, low cost. 2 leads for Knock Knock, 5 principals for Wombo. Ensembles scale to your company.
- Projections, not builds. Scenery is projected, so there's almost nothing to build, store or truck. Fast load-in, easy to tour, easy to share a venue.
- No band. Wombo runs on tracks.
- Fringe-ready. Both run under an hour, so they fit standard festival slots.
- Two audiences. Horror fans and comedy crowds on the same night.

What we're looking for Producing partners, venues and festival programmers for a first production, plus development opportunities such as readings and workshops.

Available on request

Scripts, Wombo demo tracks, character breakdowns and production notes.

About the writer

bGame is a Sydney writer and lyricist. He publishes dark flash fiction through Story Bytes on Substack and writes, directs and acts in his own short films.

Contact: bGame (Brian Game) · brian.game@me.com · 0424 957 111

knockknockwombo.com

© 2026 bGame. All rights reserved. Both works are original and available for development and production conversations.